

THE EARLY CHRISTIAN ATTITUDE TO WAR

A CONTRIBUTION TO THE
HISTORY OF CHRISTIAN ETHICS

BY

C. JOHN CADOUX

M.A., D.D. (Lond.), M.A. (Oxon)

WITH A FOREWORD BY THE Rev. W. E. ORCHARD, D.D.

LONDON

HEADLEY BROS. PUBLISHERS, LTD.

72 OXFORD STREET, W. 1.

1919

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	PAGE
FOREWORD BY DR. ORCHARD	vii
CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE	xvii
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS AND EXPLANATIONS ...	xxv
INTRODUCTION	1-17
Christian ethics in general	1
Importance of the history of early Christian ethics	2
Present urgency of the ethical problem of war	3
Scope and method of the present work... ..	4
Previous treatment of the subject (since Grotius)	6
Need of a further work on the subject	13
Personal convictions in relation to the special task of an historian of Christian ethics	13
Relative justification of other moral standards than one's own	14
Use of the argumentum ad hominem	15
Conditions of military service in the Roman Empire	15
 PART I. THE TEACHING OF JESUS	 19-47
Range of Jesus' teaching on the subject of war... ..	19
Statements of Jesus inconsistent with the lawfulness of war for Christians :—
I. 'Thou shalt not kill'	20
II. The non-resistance teaching	22
III. Refusal to advance his ideals by political or coercive means	26
IV. Disapproval of Gentile 'authority' because resting on coercion	28

	PAGE
V. Three incidental utterances	29
(a) 'Neither do I condemn thee'	29
(b) 'Flee to the mountains'	29
(c) 'Put back thy sword into its place'	30
Summary	31
Statements of Jesus and other considerations apparently legitimizing warfare for Christians:—
I. 'Whoever impresses thee (to go) one mile, go two with him'	32
II. No explicit disapproval of the military calling	32
III. The expulsion of the traders from the Temple-courts	34
IV. The wars of the future	35
V. Illustrative allusions to war... ..	38
VI. Recognition of civil government	40
VII. The obvious needs of society	42
VIII. The 'interim-ethic' theory	44
Summary	46
Explanatory note on the arrangement of the remaining material	48

PART II. FORMS OF THE EARLY CHRISTIAN

DISAPPROVAL OF WAR	49-160
The Condemnation of War in the abstract	49
Early authors... ..	49
Clemens of Alexandria, Tertullianus, Hippolutos, etc.	51
Cyprianus to Methodios	52
Arnobius, Lactantius, and Eusebios	54
Summary	57
The Essential Peacefulness of Christianity	58
General statements of early authors down to Justinus	58
Christian appropriation of the 'ploughshare' prophecy of Isaiah... ..	60
General statements of later authors (Athenagoras to Arnobius)	64
Concluding comments	66
The Christian Treatment of Enemies and Wrongdoers	67
Pertinence of the subject	67
Christian writers of the first century	67
The Apostle John and the Robber... ..	71
Christian writers of the first half of the second century	72
Justinus	74
Athenagoras, Theophilus, etc.	75

Contents

xiii

	PAGE
Eirenaios	76
Clemens of Alexandria	78
Tertullianus	78
Origenes	79
Cyprianus, etc.	81
Lactantius, etc.	83
The question of the defence of others	84
The Christians' Experience of Evil in the Character of Soldiers	89
Introductory	89
The soldier's share in persecution	90
Other occasions of offence	95
Conclusion	95
The Christian Refusal to participate in War	96
No Christian soldier known to have existed between 50 and 170 A.D.	97
Sergius Paulus and the Praetorian Guard in the time of Paul	97
The action of the Jerusalem Christians in the war of 67-71 A.D.	98
No evidence of Christian soldiers in the reign of Trajanus	99
No evidence of Christian soldiers in the reign of Hadrianus	100
The impression given by Justinus	102
The impression given by Tatianus and Athenagoras ...	103
The evidence of Celsus	104
General remarks on the period of M. Aurelius	105
Statements of Eirenaios, etc.	106
Statements of Tertullianus	106
Remarks on the statements of Tertullianus:—
1. Earliest evidence for the enlistment of baptized Christians	113
2. Tertullianus seriously advises Christians to leave the army... ..	113
3. Tertullianus moved by humanitarian considera- tions, as well as by the danger of idolatry ...	114
4. Tertullianus not disingenuous	115
5. Tertullianus justified in trying to apply the Gospel to practical life	116
6. The alternative service rendered by the Christian to the State,	117
7. Tertullianus not an individual dissenter from the rest of the Church	117

	PAGE
The Canons of Hippolutos and the early Church-Orders ...	119
The literary problems	119
Tabular statement of the evidence... ..	122
Summary of the evidence	124
Conclusion as to the oldest regulations	124
Importance of this conclusion	126
Evidence given by Minucius Felix	128
Statements of Origenes	129
Remarks on the statements of Origenes :—
1. He recognizes the possibility of righteous wars waged by non-Christians	137
2. His view of the illegitimacy of war for Christians not therefore to be regarded as an inconsistency or as not seriously meant	138
3. His evidence as to the extent of the Christian refusal of service	139
4. His view independent of eschatology	140
5. He objects to war on the score of bloodshed, not idolatry	141
6. His emphasis on the alternative service of the Christian	142
7. His programme not open to the charge of anarchy ...	143
The position of Cyprianus	147
The evidence of Plotinos... ..	148
The martyrdom of Maximilianus (295 A.D.)	149
The difficulty over idolatry—martyrdom of Marinus (260 A.D.)	151
The martyrdom of Marcellus and Cassianus (298 A.D.) ...	152
Cases of other Christians leaving the army about 300 A.D. ...	153
Christian view (250–313 A.D.) as to illegitimacy of litigation and magistracy for Christians	154
Quotations from Arnobius and Lactantius	157

PART III. FORMS OF THE EARLY CHRISTIAN

ACCEPTANCE OF WAR 161–243

The use of military terms and phrases to illustrate the religious life—
by Paul	161
by Clemens of Rome and Ignatius	163
by Justinus, Tertullianus, etc.	164
by Origenes, etc.	165
by Cyprianus, etc.... ..	167
Such language usually non-committal as to earthly warfare	167
but was not without its own dangers	168

Contents

XV

	PAGE
The Wars of the Old Testament and of Hebrew History ...	170
References in early writers down to Justinus ...	171
Theory broached by Markion	173
Later developments	174
Views of Origenes and 'Adamantios'	175
Cyprianus and others	177
Concluding summary	178
Apocalyptic Wars	179
Bearing of belief in apocalyptic wars on Christian conduct	182
The Jewish War of 67-71 A.D.	184
War as an Instrument of Divine Justice	191
Bearing of this view of war on Christian conduct ...	192
The Functions of the State	194
View of the State as a useful and necessary institution, ordained by God for the restraint of wrongdoing ...	195
Recognition of the rightfulness of judicial penalties ...	197
Recognition of the rightfulness, in some sense, of war	204
Writers down to Julius Africanus	205
Origenes and later writers	207
Prayer for the imperial armies	209
The Christian justification of State-coercion was relative to the State's paganism, and did not imply a Christian readiness to participate in it	211
Utterior problems involved in this position	215
Contribution to their solution offered by Origenes ...	215
Contribution to their solution offered in the Clemen- tine Homilies	216
Contribution to their solution offered in the Dialogus de Recta Fidei	218
Defence of early Christian abstention from State- coercion	220
Cases of real or apparent compromise (short of military service) in pre-Constantinian Christianity	221
The Christian's Experience of Good in the Character of Soldiers	225
The Participation of Christians in Military Service	228
The period ending 170 A.D.	228
The so-called 'Thundering Legion'	229
Julius Africanus and Clemens of Alexandria	232
Basileides of Alexandria	233
The information contributed by Tertullianus	234
He is the oldest witness for the enlistment of Christians in the army after conversion ...	235

Inscriptions	236
Cyprianus and other writers down to the Great Persecution	237
Christians in the armies of Constantinus and Licinius ...	241
Note on the numbers of Christians in the armies, 250-313 A.D.	242

PART IV. SUMMARY AND CONCLUSION

244-265

Summary of Jesus' teaching	244
Extent of the strict adherence of the Church to this teaching	245
Yet few Christians called on to face the problem of military service	246
Connexions in which Christians thought of war without reproach	247
Simplemindedness and other conditions facilitating the continuance of converted soldiers in the army	249
Further reasons for a certain acquiescence in this state of things	250
The thin end of the wedge	251
Extent of acquiescence in the bearing of arms by Christians has been greatly exaggerated	252
Strength of the adherence to stricter views	255
The conclusion involved in the triumph and patronage of Constantinus	256
The importance and significance of this conclusion	257
Vigorous survival of stricter views after the Constantinian settlement	259
That settlement in regard to war discredited by the way in which it was arrived at	261
The bearing of the early Christian witness on modern conditions	262

INDEX	267-272
---------------------	----------------